Dear Sir Graham,

I am writing to share my deep regret that I no longer have confidence in our Prime Minister, Rt Hon Boris Johnson MP.

This Government has a strong record on some of the biggest challenges we have faced as a country, not least in our world-beating Covid vaccine roll-out and our support for Ukraine.

However, the catalogue of recent events, concluding with the unforgivable mishandling of an alleged sexual assault, have significantly overshadowed these achievements and, in my view, have brought the Prime Minister's leadership into disrepute.

I like to think that I have served the Prime Minister, both as a Minister and backbench MP, with integrity and loyalty. However, my priorities will always be my loyalty to my constituents, the Conservative Party and this Country and I am sorry to say that I no longer believe the Prime Minister is governing in the best interests of any of them.

So, with sadness, I withdraw my support for the Prime Minister, in the hope that we can rebuild trust in the Conservative Party and deliver the strong leadership, integrity and vision our great Country deserves.

Yours sincerely,
